

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Method for manufacturing corrugated board or the like, whereby different material strips (3-6) are fastened together by means of a bonding agent, whereby one or several material strips (3-6) are guided along at least one press-on device (15-16), where they are guided over one or several elements (10-14), in particular supporting elements, and are pressed against them by means of a series of movable press-on parts (19), wherein characterized in that for pressing on these press-on parts (19), use is made of magnetic forces.

Figure 3.